Dear Colleagues,

In my message of earlier this week, I congratulated our colleagues in USF's College of Education, College of Nursing, School of Physical Therapy, and the Department of Psychology for the recognition their programs received in the U.S. News & World Report's magazine, America's Best Graduate Schools 2009. We have since learned that many more departments and colleges deserve recognition for their achievements as noted by U.S. News. Unfortunately, the magazine does not release its full listings to universities' media offices, so they find themselves making announcements with incomplete information. It is my sincere pleasure to acknowledge the accomplishments of all the programs included in this year's rankings:

Education – #45

Fine Art – #81

Health (based upon U.S. News and World Report's classification)

- Audiology – #24
- Public Health – #20
- Rehabilitation Counseling – #39
- Speech-Language Pathology – #46
- Clinical Psychology – #57
- Physical Therapy – #69
- Social Work – #71
- Nursing – #72

Library and Information Sciences – #24

Social Sciences & Humanities (based upon U.S. News and World Report's classification)

- Specialty Ranking: Industrial and Organizational Psychology – #10
- Psychology – #136

Thank you again for your hard work and commitment to USF, and I apologize for the earlier incomplete report.

Best regards,

Ralph
